

GENERAL INFORMATION SHEET

Thank you for wanting to know about our Co-op. The mission of the Co-op is to provide safe, well managed, affordable housing. To help you better understand living in a Co-op, please read the following information before mailing in your application form. Visit our website at www.rishonco-op.yolasite.com for more information.

WHAT IS CO-OPERATIVE HOUSING?

Co-operative housing is one of the world's oldest types of housing. In British Columbia, over 150,000 people live in Co-ops. Rishon Co-op is a member of CHF BC (Co-operative Housing Federation of BC). Over 235 Co-ops belong to the Co-operative Housing Federation of BC (CHF BC).

Co-op housing costs less, has good neighbours and you can make it your home. All of the people living in the building own the land and the building together.

HOW DOES A CO-OPERATIVE WORK?

The people living in the building (the members) run the Co-op. When a decision has to be made each member has a vote. Once a year, the members decide and vote for the Board of Directors who will take care of the Co-op's business. Members pay a monthly housing charge (rent) to cover the cost of buying the building, taxes and maintenance of the building. Housing charges go up only if we need to spend more money to take care of the maintenance of the building.

WHAT DOES MEMBERSHIP MEAN?

Membership means owning, controlling and working together where you live. Members work on one or more of the following committees: Finance, Maintenance or Membership/Education. All members must attend all General Membership Meetings and all Special Meetings where they make decisions to help run the Co-op. Members make decisions about hiring professional people to do big jobs that need to be done in the building and other Co-op matters when necessary.

WHAT DOES CO-OP HOUSING OFFER?

1. Lower cost housing

Housing charges (rent) is used to maintain the Co-op. Members work in the Co-op and are in charge of running it.

2. Control by Members

Each member has a vote at the General Membership Meetings which are held every two months and Special Membership Meetings which are held when necessary to decide, for example, spending money and making rules.

3. Strong Neighbourhoods

Working together running the Co-op helps us to be good neighbours to each other. At the Co-op, we can meet new people, have places for children to play and have different kinds of people living together. An important thing in Co-op housing is that different kinds of people can live in the same building and be good neighbours to each other.

4. All of the members work together

It is very important that everyone of all ages living in the Co-op work together so that everyone can live here without spending a lot of money to take care of the Co-op. It is important that you understand that each member works on a Committee. This means going to regular meetings, working on a Committee and working on special jobs. At Rishon, members MUST work for six to eight hours each month for the Co-op.
